

SUE SCHICK
CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER

UNITEDHEALTHCARE EMPLOYER & INDIVIDUAL OF PENNSYLVANIA

Sue Schick is Chief Executive Officer of UnitedHealthcare Employer & Individual of Pennsylvania. In her role, she is responsible for all aspects of overseeing the company's commercial health benefits business in the Commonwealth, including growing and retaining its commercial and individual members, establishing market and network strategies, achieving financial targets, acting as a primary interface with brokers and consultants, and maintaining solid relationships with all regulatory and legislative bodies.

Sue joined UnitedHealthcare in 2003 as the National Vice President of Broker Strategies & Programs before being named CEO of the Pennsylvania commercial health plan. She has been in the employee benefits industry for more than 25 years, including 10 years as an Employee Benefits Practice & Middle Market Leader with Marsh (formerly Johnson & Higgins).

Most recently appointed chairperson of The Pennsylvania Commission for Women by Governor Tom Corbett, Sue is a regular speaker and blogger on the topics of health care reform, business leadership and philanthropy. She remains actively engaged in the local community as she strives to help increase career opportunities for women and improve the health of the communities in which she and her staff live and work. Sue serves on the Governor's Advisory Council on Privatization and Innovation to explore if any functions performed by state government might be better and more cost-effectively performed by the private sector, the Membership Committee of the Forum of Executive Women and on the Board of the Insurance Federation of Pennsylvania. In addition, Sue is a member of the Board of Directors of the Philadelphia Affiliate of the Susan G. Komen for the Cure and on the Pennsylvania Board of Directors for the March of Dimes.

Because of her commitment to Philadelphia business and the broader community, Sue received two recognitions from SmartCEO Magazine in 2011 – the “Circle of Excellence Award,” which honors Philadelphia business leaders for their philanthropic efforts, and a “Brava! Business Women Achievement Award,” which recognizes women business leaders in Philadelphia for their business achievement and community involvement. The Susan G. Komen for the Cure Philadelphia Affiliate also recognized Sue in 2011 with the Lumina Award for her efforts and the company's commitment to help find a cure for breast cancer.

Sue holds a B.S. in economics/business from Randolph-Macon College, where she graduated summa cum laude and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. She is currently on the Randolph-Macon Board of Trustees and is an active volunteer, including serving as past president of the Society of Alumni. She received her Certified Employee Benefits Designation from the International Foundation of Employee Benefit Plans and the Wharton School, and was the founding President of the Richmond ISCEBS Chapter.
