

Neumann Athletic Training

Program Newsletter

Students Visit NYC for NATM 2019

NU AT Student Club helps raise awareness of AT profession

A number of students, along with faculty members, hit the road for National Athletic Training Month in March and visited the Big Apple to celebrate and raise awareness for the great work that athletic trainers do. The trip included attending the live taping of Good Morning America in Times Square, as well as cultural experience in Little Italy, Chinatown, and the National September 11th Memorial and Museum.

1

NEW BUILDING!

NU AT has been adjusting nicely to the new Health Sciences Building.

2

MASTER'S PROGRAM

The new Master's Program is set to roll out in the Summer of 2019.

3

GUEST LECTURES

A number of professionals visited campus to give guest lectures this semester!

Senior Projects

Preparation is underway for the April 11th Senior Presentations!

Spring Service

Students will be visiting the Assisi House on campus next month!

Graduation

Countdown is on! Less than 2 months until the May 11th Commencement.

Guest Lecturers on Campus

Students were excited to hear from experts with pro-sports experience

This semester students were given the opportunity to sit in on talks by two professionals from the Philadelphia area. On February 21st, Brian Cammarota, ATC, PT, DPT, CSCS presented on the evaluation and management of injuries in overhead athletes. Brian's specializes in rehabilitation of shoulder and elbow injuries and his experience includes 12 years within the Philadelphia Phillies organization. He gave a passionate presentation and it was great for students to spend some time learning from a Neumann Alum (DPT '15)!

“It's all about grit and doing what you love.” - Shaun Huls

On March 14th, Shaun Huls, Director of High Performance for the Philadelphia Eagles. He gave an inspiring talk to a full room of students.

His message included building relationships throughout your career and always giving your best effort to improve yourself. Shaun advised students to seek out what they love and to always keep learning.

NEUMANN UNIVERSITY ENTRY LEVEL MASTER'S PROGRAM

We are proud to announce the launch of our master's in athletic training program, starting in the Summer of 2019. Program features include a hybrid format utilizing online and face-to-face instruction in our new state of the art Health Sciences Center. There are 4 clinical experiences that compliment classroom content providing opportunity for applied learning under the supervision of a certified athletic trainer. Students will also participate in at least one "immersive clinical experience" during the last year in the program. Read more about our new program on the NU website.

Athletic Training Appreciation Night

Flyers host a special event for Philly Area AT Programs

On February 4th, a group of students visited Wells Fargo Arena for the 1st Annual Philadelphia Flyers Athletic Training Night. It was a special event organized for students that featured a panel presentation comprised of physicians, fellows, and athletic trainers from the Flyers Sports Medicine Staff. After, the students got to watch a Flyer's victory over the visiting Vancouver Canucks.

Grand Opening of the Health Sciences Center

NU AT moves into new offices, labs, and classrooms to start Spring 2019 Semester

Athletic training faculty and students were thrilled to move into the brand new Health Sciences Center in January 2019. The new 22,000 square foot extension of the existing Rocco A. Abessinio Building boasts a 300-seat lecture hall, six laboratories, and a faculty office suite. It has been a wonderful experience holding classes and labs in the new space.

FOLLOW NEUMANN UNIVERSITY ATHLETIC TRAINING ON INSTAGRAM!

@neumann_atr

